Packs small and plays big. It is also easy to do. This is a four to one rope routine. The performer can carry the rope in a hat, a paper bag; even pull them from his pockets. Four pieces of rope are pulled from some hiding place one at a time. Each piece of rope is about eight inches long. The ropes are shown to be completely separate from each other. Then, with a quick pull, all four ropes merge into one long piece. The rope is real and can be examined by the audience. This is a stage effect. It would fit well into anyone's show.
